

MEXICAN ACCEPTS TULSA INVITATION

Governor of Tamaulipas
to Come Here Following Texas Ceremony

Tulsa will entertain the governor of the state of Tamaulipas, Mexico, following the inauguration of Governor Hobbs at Austin, Texas, on January 14. The exact date of the Mexican governor's visit here has not yet been set.

A telegram received by the chamber of commerce Friday from the governor's secretary states that "in the name of the governor of Tamaulipas and mine I wish to advise you that we gladly accept the honor of your invitation to visit your city after the inauguration of the Texas governor and desire to express our appreciation to your citizens and our fraternal regards."

The invitation was sent by the chamber of commerce to the governor of Tamaulipas that he might visit the oil capital of the world and thus not only see the oil industry as it progresses in a great city and a great state, but that he might have face to face the capitalists of the oil industry who live in or near Tulsa, many of whom are interested in extending or continuing their operations around Tampico, which is the oil city and oil district of Tamaulipas, Mexico's richest oil state.

Now that the invitation has been accepted, Clarence H. Douglas, managing director of the chamber of commerce, expects to get in touch immediately with the local oil fraternity that it may arrange a proper reception for the guest from Mexico and make his brief stay here as pleasant as possible. As one of the big men of Mexico, his opinions concerning oil operations in Mexico carry great weight and are of more than passing interest to those oil men who are looking with longing eyes at Mexico as one of the great oil producing countries of the future.

Because of the recent difficulties experienced by operators in the Mexican fields, Douglas believes the governor's visit here will be of more than usual significance.

An invitation will be sent to Gov. J. B. A. Robertson at Oklahoma City to be in Tulsa during the stay here of the Mexican state official.

E. Rogers Kemp has already been named chairman of the reception and entertainment committee.

Mrs. Pierce in Winter Weather.

"The week before we tried Don Sung, we got 5 eggs from an hen. The next week, from a package of Don Sung, we got 12 eggs, and the next week 104. Some of our hens are more pullets and Don Sung started them to laying." Mrs. H. F. Pierce, R. F. D. 4, Butler, Tenn. Mrs. Pierce selected a severe time for her test—the middle of January. Yet she got the eggs. Your hen can lay well in cold weather, and we'll prove it.

Give your hens Don Sung and watch results for one month. If you don't find that it pays for itself, can lay well, in cold weather, and we'll prove it.

Don Sung (Chinese) for egg-laying is a scientific tonic and conditioner. It is easily given in the feed, improves the hen's health and makes her stronger and more active. It tones up the egg-laying organs, and gets the eggs, no matter how cold or wet the weather.

Don Sung can be obtained promptly from your druggist or poultry remedy dealer, or sent 52c or $1.04 (includes war tax) for a package by mail, postpaid. Burnett-Douglass Co., 214 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

The Inspiration for a Great Novel

TOWARD sunset of a California evening, Peter T. B. Kyne and I—no man ever had a better companion than Peter B. Kyne—drove up to one of those picturesque old missions in southern California.
A hooded and sandaled padre welcomed us.
We strolled into the churchyard just as the evening
bells were tolling.

We were studying the old Spanish names on the gravestones and musing on the California that was when we came upon one stone that startled us to attention.

Sacred to the Memory of Patrick O'Reilly of County Cork

The dates on the headstone went back two generations.

I turned to Peter.
"What under the sun do you suppose led Patrick O'Reilly, of County Cork, into this Spanish settlement?"

With that wonderful Irish smile of his, he answered:

"What leads an Irishman anywhere? 'Twas a pair of flashing black eyes, to be sure."

He and I have talked about the gravestone a number of times since; it fascinated both of us. Finally, early this spring, while we were after trout in the northern part of California, it gave Peter Kyne the inspiration for the best novel he has written.

It's a novel which has to do with the days of the old ranches, the days of guitars in the moonlight,
the days of beautiful Spanish women, and men gallant and brave. Also, it has to do very vitally with the California of today, and with a California question which is so far-reaching that it affects every man, woman and child in the United States.

The novel begins in the January issue of Cosmopolitan. I want every reader of Cosmopolitan to begin at the beginning, because, in the course of one of the most remarkably fine love-stories I ever read,
I have learned more about one part of my country
than I could have from any other source.
